

The Saturday Evening Post

VOLUME I.

PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER 5, 1822.

NUMBER 62.

PRINTED BY ATKINSON & ALEXANDER, No. 53 MARKET STREET,
Four doors below Second st.—north side.

CONDITIONS.

The Saturday Evening Post is published once a week, at two dollars per annum, payable half yearly in advance, or THREE DOLLARS if not paid before the end of the year.
Subscribers will have the privilege to insert an advertisement, throughout the year, to the extent of half a square, at two dollars additional, with an allowance for alterations. Non-subscribers pay the usual price. A wish to discontinue the paper must be made known before the expiration of the time subscribed for, or the engagement will be considered good for another six months.

FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

There is a charm attached to every thing connected with the approach of Winter and the departure of Summer, which has often led me into the recesses of the forest, to muse upon its bright but fading beauties. It is like the feeling with which we gaze upon the features of the departed, conscious that the separation is but the harbinger of a glorious resurrection.

When Summer's bright unsullied ray, Has lost its melting warmth and fire, How grand those splendours fade away, How swift those scenes of bloom retire.

From groves where Flora's step might linger, Each sylvan beauty seems to fade,
And pleasures sketched by Fancy's finger, Have lost their charms in Autumn's shade.

This path, by Summer strewn with roses, No longer boasts its wild perfume,
And yonder bower where Love reposes, Must mourn its dearest flow'ret's doom.

But there's a hope the heart may cherish, When B. auty flies on hasty wing, Though her bright eye may see them perish, These fairy scenes will bloom in Spring.

STANZAS.

To her who said "Remember me."
No—ask not to remember thee, Since every true worth can give,
Has bound thy dearest name to me,
Which in my thoughts shall ever live.

Should death first call thee to thy doom, My breast will be thy cemetery—My heart shall be a living tomb, Inscribed, in memory of thee.

Sept. 26, 1822. HORATIO.

The following is among the beautiful songs in new play of the Law of Jara, by Colman:—

Lo in the vale, where a streamlet ran,
And under a tree reclined, An pilgrim measured the wit of man, By thinking on woman-kind.

And a soft, bewitching smile,
With a thousand, thousand charms beside,
Our senses to beguile!

Mute every glance that confirms her sway;
Not, too, each duple's power;
Look to her lips how the young loves play,
Like bees on the honied flower!

And a soft, bewitching smile,
With a thousand, thousand charms beside,
Our senses to beguile!

Look every glance that confirms her sway;
Not, too, each duple's power;
Look to her lips how the young loves play,
Like bees on the honied flower!

And a soft, bewitching smile,
With a thousand, thousand charms beside,
Our senses to beguile!

THE SOLITAIRE—No. V.

There is nothing more difficult to attain, or necessary to possess as perfect good breeding."

It is a matter of no trifling moment to every person, be his situation in society what it may, to be esteemed well bred.

For the benefit of those who are anxious to acquire that character, a few remarks may perhaps prove serviceable.—Despise punctuality—it is beneath the notice of a gentleman, and although you pledge your word and over again, it is little and mean to comply with it.

As conscience will only be a stumbling block, it will be best for you to dispose of impudence as an indispensable article: provide yourself with a large quantity, which liberally use upon all occasions. It will enable you to perform wonders, and without its sovereign aid, in vain will you seek for admiration.

It is by no means necessary that your pericranium be crammed with that out-landish article called "useful knowledge."

Let others of less consequence lumber their brains with the "spurious trash,"—gentlemen need no such paltry assistance. If you happen to get in a dispute, never refract a little from any thing you advance, though you know yourself in the wrong; insist in your argument, back it with the force of strong vociferation, and engross all the talk; you then prevent your anta-

Assume a pompous air, talk loud, boast of your domestic expenses and make a great show; this has an effect upon "the natives," excites their admiration, and never fails to procure you a "great name."

The Clergy are always a fair object of ridicule—as public characters, every gentleman has a right to canvass their professional affairs.

In company we very often meet with some kind people, who have an admirable way of saving one the trouble of proceeding in a story, by undertaking to furnish the audience with the remainder of it, as soon as a person has made a beginning.
Now this is true urbanity and certainly proceeds from a desire of being serviceable.

THE PILGRIMS.

In 1817, a group of singular people, called Pilgrims, passed through Pennsylvania to the westward. They were composed of men, women and children, clad like a second company of Gibeonites, and looked like the fog end of a hurricane.— Their leader, who was styled a Prophet, it is said was formerly an inhabitant of Lower Canada. Having been afflicted with a long spell of sickness, he betook himself to the practice of frequent prayer; and finding by this exercise his inner man much strengthened, and his health also improved, he began to have, as he thought, very extraordinary illuminations, which he communicated to his neighbours who visited him. Some of them were converted to his persuasion; and when his health was restored, he set out with his followers, to travel in quest of a land flowing with milk and honey, where he assured them, every thing that was necessary for their sustenance and convenience, would be provided, without the agency of labour and toil. As they travelled through the country they availed themselves of the charity of the benevolent, and made use of such opportunities as were afforded for the promulgation of their doctrines. Some were converted, joined in the procession, and went with them. At Mount Pleasant in the state of Ohio, they tarried several days; a person who had an interview with them there, enquired why they did not wash themselves and their clothing, and make a more decent appearance. Their answer was, that they had been as decent in these respects as other people, but that they were commanded to appear in their present character, for an outward sign of the inward condition of Christian professors. One article of their creed was, a literal acceptance of that passage in the New Testament which says, "Except ye be as little children, ye cannot inherit the kingdom of heaven."—In order to fulfil this doctrine, we are told that they harmonized with each other, and some of the men in imitation of little boys, were seen riding corn stalks or sticks, for horses; and other childish amusements were noticed among them. The story of the Prophet having borrowed the wife of one of his followers is not so well authenticated as to be mentioned as a fact.

The following extract of a letter written by a friend at Winesville, dated 3d mo.
9, 1818, furnishes some interesting particulars, concerning these curious mortals.

"A company of strange people called Pilgrims, came into Winesville on Second-day, the 23d of last month—got into an empty house, and in the evening had a meeting in a wheelwright's shop. Several of them preached; and many who went to hear them, seemed to think well of their doctrine. On Third-day, the town was all in a stir; almost every body going to see them. Fourth day was our monthly meeting, and after the business was gone through, a request was opened for the Pilgrims to have liberty to hold a meeting in our meeting house.—Some were very much opposed to it; finally a committee was appointed to visit them, and invested with power to grant or deny, as they should think best, after fathoming their mission.
The request was granted by the committee, and a meeting accordingly appointed at 3 o'clock next day. There were about twenty of them altogether, men women and children. The men had long beards, and the women short hair. The greater part of both sexes, were intolerably ragged, dirty and greasy, and some had their coats on wrong side out. They wore woollen caps on their heads, a strip of coarse linen on the back, reaching from the shoulder to the wrist, and round the waist a belt of sheepskin, or some other sort of raw hide with the hair on. In this kind of rigging, five men and two women marched to the meeting house, and up into the high gallery. Three of the men, and both the women preached. While one was preaching, another made a long humming sound, beginning with wo—and ending in the sound of a double o, nearly resembling the cry of a great number of locusts at a distance.

They declared themselves to be the forerunners of a second coming of Christ, that the greater part of professors had fallen, and they were sent to gather the elect.

One of the men, we are told, had been a methodist minister; he preached loud and fast, and hammered it in with both hand and foot. I apprehend its equal seldom, if ever, graced a Quaker gallery before. On Seventh-day morning, they left the town, and a Friend accompanied them to Lebanon. He tells us, they were joined there, by another company of the same sect, and that they had a meeting next day, the greatest he was ever at."

A gentleman who saw the Pilgrims at Cincinnati, informed the writer of this sketch, that their number amounted to 70 or 80 persons. He says they were not deranged in their intellects—they preached well and appeared to be a harmless people. One peculiarity he observed among them, they always took their drink through a quill; but he could not ascertain their reasons for it, only that it was their order.

Some rude people abused the Prophet, by taking him on the river Ohio, and setting him adrift in an old boat; but he was brought on shore again by others who were more humane. The same gentleman informs, that the whole company pursued their journey down the Ohio, in search of the good country which the Prophet had taught them to believe, they should certainly find—he said that Providence directed their steps, and he should infallibly know the place when they arrived at it.

At length their pilgrimage came to an end; for the Prophet took sick and died some distance below Cincinnati; and his followers dispersed, some of them returned to Lebanon and joined the Society of Shakers, and others went elsewhere. The story of the Prophet getting possession of all the money belonging to the company, and making his escape with it, appears to have been a fabrication.

This system of religion, as far as we are acquainted with it, exhibits various traits of singularity, and yet perhaps not more than might be found in some other eccentricities of the human mind on the same subject.

He dates his revelation, like some other founders of religious sects, in a spell of bodily indisposition. And how often do we see that fevers and other disorders produce a partial delirium in the mind, and it appears probable that from such a disorganization, may arise many strange ideas, which being mixed and blended by a considerable share of rational understanding yet remaining, result in practices different from those of mankind in general.

These people, like Nebuchadnezzar's image are partly sound and partly broken—where the former quality seems to have the preponderance, it exhibits many excellent and incontestible truths, how liable are weak minds to be dazzled with these, and instead of making a discrimination between the truth at one time and the error at another, the whole is swallowed without hesitation. Hence it is, that every system of religion, however strange, has its followers, and when we consider that many strange doctrines and tenets, are the result of minds that are partially deranged, and of ignorance in those who become converts to such doctrines and tenets, we think ourselves justified in extending over them the mantle of charity, so long as they behave with civility and do not encroach upon the harmony of civil society and the good of the commonwealth. LUCAS.

THE LEVEE OF THE GRACES.

At the time appointed at the adjournment of the meeting on the evening of the 19th inst. the society again assembled at the Hall, to appoint officers for the ensuing year, and also to receive the report of the committee.

After the regular ballot the following named persons appeared duly elected:— FRANCIS FUNNY as President, REBECCA RESERVE and TABITHA TROLLOP as Presidencies, with Gilbert Gosling and Harriet Hairbrain as Secretaries.

After the officers had been regularly installed in their respective departments, Ben Brainless, on behalf of the committee appointed at our late meeting, begged leave to report, "that they had met sundry times in the prosecution of the duties assigned them, and they now had the pleasure of presenting a Code of Laws for the government of the Society, whose designation, with all due deference to the opinion of their fellow-members, they had chosen "the Levee of the Graces."

The Secretary proceeded to read the regulations presented by the committee, when Fanny Flirt interrupted him, by moving, "that we postpone hearing them for the present," and although the president declared "such a proceeding incorrect, as the society would be acting under laws of whose tenor and import they were entirely ignorant," still the female part of the meeting carried the motion in despite of his high authority.

Solomon Cynic, a gentleman verging fast towards the grand climacteric, "begged leave to call the attention of the meeting to the excessively immodest (as he called it) manner in which the Ladies now wore the body of their dresses. In some instances (he continued), to the best of his belief there was no part of the dress to be discerned above the waist of the wearer.

In this particular, (he said,) a reform was absolutely necessary, and he trusted, thro' the discretion and delicacy of the society it would be enforced. He concluded by introducing the following lines, which, in accidentally turning the leaves of an old magazine, struck his attention—

If Eve, in her innocence, could not be blamed, Because going naked, she was not ashamed;
Who ever views the Ladies, as Ladies now dress—That again they grow innocent, sure will confess.

And that artfully too, they retiate the evil.
By the devil once tempted, they'd now tempt the devil."

The uproar in the laver now became tremendous—every lady in the chamber rose in a fury, and a noise only equalled by the vociferation of Babel, swept thro' the room. The worthy chairman in vain exerted his lungs to repress the tumult, and after several ineffectual attempts he declared the subject postponed until our meeting in the following week, and dissolved the meeting by leaving the chair.

In the confusion, Mr. Cynic luckily made his escape from the chamber, although his retreat was accelerated in some little measure by the various missiles the Ladies threw after him, such as shoes, ridiculous ink-stands, &c. and in this state of riotous anarchy the members separated.

GILBERT GOSLING,
HARRIET HAIRBRAIN, } Secretaries.

THE ITINERANT—No. VIII.

"A thing of shreds and patches."

POPULARITY—What is vulgarly called popularity, is a drug so cheap in the political market, that it is unworthy the acceptance of a high-minded and honourable man. It may be obtained by sycophancy, double dealing, and by falsehood: it requires the exercise of no other talent than that of knavery and deception; the false patriot has nothing more to do than to make pompous promises, and to neglect to comply with these promises when made, and he will obtain vulgar popularity in abundance. Real popularity is a bird of a prouder plume, and, metaphorically speaking, may be said to belong to the avian genus—he wings his way to the centre of light and glory, while he bears plaudits from the gazing multitudes below: he is still gaining on the beams, and finally if he does not reside in the blaze, it is not for want of effort, but because he has no atmosphere, where he can exert the energies of his wings.

ORIGINAL SIN.—A Scotchman in New-Hampshire being sick, was called upon by a clergyman, who conversed with him upon his religious concerns. Said the minister, Do you repent of all your sins? Do you repent of Adam's first sin?

"Adam! Adam!" said the sick Scotchman, "I never knew the man!"

INDOLENCE.—Whatever, says Johnson, busies the mind without corrupting it, has at least this use, that it rescues the day from idleness, and he that is never idle, will not often be vicious.

THE PHILANTHROPIST.—Peace and comfort rest for evermore upon thy head! Thou envierest no man's person or opinion. Thou blackenest no man's character—devouredst no man's bread—for each one's sorrow thou hadst a tear—for each man's need thou hadst a charity.

MARRIAGE.—The Duke once said to Tal-lard, (whom he had taken prisoner,) "the only difference between you and me is—I have committed a hundred faults, and you a hundred and one."

And this, said an eminent statesman, often reveals the mysteries of war.

AGREEABLE READING.—Mr. Hogg, in his life, tells us this anecdote of a man of Eskdalemuir.

He had borrowed Bailey's Dictionary from his neighbour, and on returning it the lender asked him what he thought of it. "I dinna ken, man," replied he, "I have read all through, but canna say that I understand it—it is the most confused book that I ever saw in my life!"

the time of the deluge,—and the first account we have of it is in the miraculous production of "swarms of lice" in Egypt.

—And he further maintains that combs were unknown before this period, and that scratching was an exercise which people had to learn since.—Having exhausted the powers of his rhetoric, his facetious antagonist, who seems to have been equally well read in philosophic and learned lore, takes up the matter and maintains it as a sacred truth, that God at the time of the creation, made all the beasts of the field and every creeping thing, the louse among the rest—and as Adam was created the same day, he thinks it was likely that the place assigned him for a habitation was upon father Adam's cranium, and that subsequently, when Adam was weary and in his blissful bower laid him down to rest with Eve, his faithful partner, by his side, to enjoy, as Milton says,

"The rites mysterious of connubial love."

Some of the numerous brood with which he was stocked, from a roving spirit, might have fixed their habitation among the flowing locks that adorned the head of Mrs.

Eve, and as she began to increase and multiply, the same native desire of roving would transfer them to her offspring, and in like manner they have been transmitted from generation to generation to the present time, and will probably so continue as long as mankind exist.—To this account of a contest upon so interesting a subject, I beg leave to add a gratifying experiment, made by the celebrated Lewenhoeck, who being desirous (as philosophers generally are) of enriching science with facts, enclosed a pregnant female louse in a dirty black stocking, which he had wore upon his own leg, and in six days he found, it had deposited fifty nits or eggs, and from a dissection he discovered as many more in the ovary; from which he concludes, that in twelve days, it would have laid one hundred eggs—he ascertained that the eggs hatched in six days, and that they attained their full size in 18 days, and allowing one half to be females, which would in 12 days more deposit each 100 eggs, that would at the usual time of hatching, produce 5000 lice. So that in eight weeks a louse may become mamma and granny to no less than 5000 of its own decendants!

no wonder, truly, that our lounging, lazy, dirty, lazaroni scrubs, can boast of their thousands of cattle, ha?

FROM AN ENGLISH MAGAZINE.

COMFORTS OF AN INN.

A gentleman whose veracity may be dependent upon, slept at the York Hotel, in the city of York, one morning in the month of May, 1822. Having been engaged with a party of friends, he did not retire till midnight; an hour which in that place is not considered untimely. Having taken his place by the Highflier, Sheffield Coach, which left York at half past eight the next morning, he gave express orders to be called at half past seven.—

Having no dread of evil spirits, he strait-way composed himself; but his rest was of short duration, for at one o'clock he was roused by a knocking at the door. "Who's there?" said the sleepy traveller. "Pray, Sir, don't you go by mail?" "No I go by the Highflier." "Beg your pardon, Sir, it's another gentleman. This unwelcome visiter robbed him of his next half hour's repose; but after many twistings and twingings, he slumbered again. Scarcely had Morpheus taken him into his service, ere a second voice saluted his ear. "Two o'clock, Sir, the Express will be off in half an hour." "What have I to do with the Express? I wish you would express yourself elsewhere." "Laws, Sir, I was told as how you went by the Express." "I told your master I was to go by the Highflier, and I hope I shall hear no more of you till half past seven." "I fear your pardon, Sir."

Again he tumbled and tossed, and again he became subject to the son of Erebus; but, like poor Monsieur Tonson, he was doomed to be haunted. At half past three he heard a loud thundering at the door.—"Sir, I've brought your boots, you must be up in a moment, the coach is at the door." Out bounced the astonished guest, and quickly replied, "Why did you not speak before?

I have had trouble enough with one or the other of you. Why did your master say the coach went at half past eight?"

"Bless me, Sir, is it you as goes by the Highflier? they told me as how you went by the Nelson. Beg your pardon, Sir, am sure." In any place but York this would have been the last customer, but the fates had conspired. At five, hears another knocking, and his patience being exhausted, he exclaims, "What the d—! do you want?" "Don't you go by the Highflier, Sir?" "To be sure I do." "Well, Sir, I'll be sure to call you at half-past seven."

Half-past seven arrived, and the gentleman made his appearance amidst a numerous assemblage of menials, all laden with petitions and apologies: "Please to remember the porter; please to remember the waiter, Sir; remember the boots, Sir; remember me, Sir, if you please, I'm the chambermaid, I called you, Sir." "Omes, I beg pardon, Sir, for disturbing you."

"Yes, I'll pardon you and remember you too, when I am many miles hence." "But don't you mean to see us nothing, Sir?"
"Yes I do mean to give you nothing, and I'll remember you all as long as I live, and may rely upon it."

This image shows a dark, vertical, textured strip, likely a book cover or binding. The material appears to be wood or a similar natural material, showing significant wear, discoloration, and a rough, uneven surface. The lighting is very dark, with some lighter areas visible on the right side, suggesting a vertical edge or a hinge. There are no discernible text or markings on the surface.

THE MARRIAGE OF A DANDY.
With hair bristled various ways,
His body straitened by stiff stays;
With dancing gait, and all his tones Broken by gentle sighs and moans; His cheeks and lips with rouge all glowing,
He came to the altar going.
Who leads, but yet appears to linger,
The lady by her little finger!
The priest astonished all the while,
Could scarce suppress or hide his smile, Then whispered to the Clerk aside, "Which of the Misses is the Bride?"

DAUGHTERLY THREAT.—A gay spark, who had taken up lodgings at a public house in London, and got considerably in debt, accused himself and took new quarters.
This outraged the landlord, that he commissioned his wife to go and dun him; which the debtor hearing of, he declared publicly, that if she came, he would kiss her. "Will he, (quoth the lady) will he?
I'll see whether any fellow on earth has such impudence." "My dear," said the cooling husband, pray don't be so rash—you don't know what a man may do when he is in a passion."

GENUINE ANECDOTE.—A "good natured" Irishman who had an unfortunate propensity of daily solacing himself with the ardent, was one day lectured by a real friend, on his taking thus frequently his solitary glass. The reply was—"By St.
Patrick, how can I help it? when I am alone, the bottle comes so quickly round to me."

THE CHARITABLE HIGHWAYMAN.—It was said of Boulter (a better sort of highwayman) that one day riding on horseback on the high road, he met a young woman who was weeping, and who appeared to be in great distress. Touched with compassion, he asked what was the cause of her affliction, when she told him, without knowing who he was, that a creditor, attended by a bailiff, had gone to a house which she pointed out, and threatened to take her husband to prison for a debt of thirty guineas.
Boulter gave her the thirty guineas, telling her to go pay the debt, and set her husband at liberty; and she ran off loading the honest gentleman with benedictions.
Boulter, in the mean time, waited on the road till he saw the creditor come out; he then attacked him, and took back the 30 guineas, besides every thing else he had about him.—Memoirs of a Traveller now in retirement.

TO RENT.
A small convenient Stone House with six rooms, including kitchen and chamber, with a stable, and an excellent pump of water in the yard, situated in the pleasant village of Hadding-ton, four miles from Schuylkill Bridge. Enquire of the subscriber.
Thomas Goodwin,

Tooth Ache Cured.
Instantly and without pain, even where all the known applications have failed to afford relief.
S. MILFORD, Dentist,
FROM LONDON.
ASSURE those who may be disposed to try his remedy, that he will make a perfect cure, and enable the patient to chew with the teeth that were affected, even though the complaint had been aggravated by bad treatment. In less than forty-eight hours after the pain is cured, Mr. M. can plug the tooth with the greatest ease to the patient. Black and yellow teeth cleaned and brought to their original colour, and prevented from decaying, if it has commenced. He also separates and makes the teeth even, and takes away the decayed parts.
Artificial Teeth really fixed and Stumps and Teeth extracted.

A. ATKINSON'S
SUPERIOR PATENT SPRING RIDING SADDLES,
AND PATENT LAPORTE BRIDLES, &c.
HAVING purchased of JOHN J. MORRIS, of the city of New-York, the sole and entire right of making and vending his newly invented SPRING SEAT and SPRING POINTED SADDLES, within the city and county of Philadelphia, offers them for Sale,
AT HIS SADDLE & HARNESS MANUFACTORY,
No. 5 North Fifth Street.
Gentlemen are respectfully invited to call and see the principle on which they are constructed.— Nearly two years' trial of the above Saddles in New-York, has rendered comments unnecessary—confident of their utility he offers them to the public, that they may decide on their superiority.
The Laporte Bridles are constructed in such a manner as to curb the most vicious Horse without injuring him, and with perfect ease and safety to the rider. They are well adapted for Ladies, and persons not in the practice of riding, as it gives them full power over their Horses in cases of fright.— They can also be applied to Harness of every description. Also, for sale, an assortment of Superior STEEL and PLATED BITS and STIRRUPS.
N. B. Gentlemen can be accommodated with Spring Saddles for trial, if required. June 15-11

OLDRIDGE'S
BALM OF COLUMBIA.
J. OLDRIDGE begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the United States and elsewhere, that he has discovered, by the power of chemistry, the grand desideratum of preventing the hair from falling off, in the short space of FORTY-EIGHT HOURS after the first application.
This Balm will also restore hair on bald places, and speedily cure the dandruff. He now considers it altogether useless to continue to give signatures, its utility being universally known in Philadelphia, and hundreds are at this time receiving their hair again. J. O. begs leave to return thanks to the generous Americans, for the liberal encouragement bestowed upon his capillary restorative since its first discovery, and hopes to merit a continuation of their favours. Prepared and sold at one dollar per bottle, and half bottle 50 cents, at No. 554 South Front Street, and at No. 11 North

Dancing School Removed.
From the corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets,
No. 624 SOUTH FOURTH STREET.
Third door below Library Street.
BONNAFFON is happy in announcing to his friends and the public, that owing to the very liberal patronage, he has been induced to move to the above room, being more spacious than his former. The expenses to which he has been in altering and repairing, so as to render it more elegant and comfortable, together with the attention, will combine to render this room much preferable than his former, and perhaps more than any in this city.
He will there open his Dancing School on Monday, the 30th inst., and continue to teach on the same method as heretofore; the advantages of which he believes has been fully tested by the rapid improvement of his pupils. He proposes holding Cotillion Parties, to which his scholars will be admitted without extra charges—to commence the beginning of December next, by which time beginners will be able to participate in the amusements they afford, as also in a collection of the newest fancy and characteristic dances and ca-lions, obtained from a teacher of New-York, recently from Europe.
For terms and hours of tuition, apply at the room, or his dwelling, No. 100 Union Street, a few doors below Fourth Street.
Days of Tuition, at the room, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The other three days of the week devoted to Seminars and Private Families, as usual.
